Mount Cinnamon Resort & Beach Club, Grenada, West Indies

With its majestic hillside setting, amongst fragrant spice trees and bewitching views of Grenada's white sands of Grand Anse Beach, it's not difficult to work out why Peter de Savary, the celebrated hotelier and yachtsman was captivated.

Complete with 21 luxurious suites and villas, all boasting breathtaking views of the vibrant spice isle of the Caribbean – the lavish villas vary between one and three bedrooms, each with a spacious sitting room, kitchen with breakfast bar and an outdoor terrace revealing the serenity of the island.

Just a short drive from St. George's, Grenada's lively capital, the eclectic resort has joined forces with leading Parisian spa and skin care brand Yon-Ka. As well as treatments offered at the resort's new spa rooms, treatments are also available at Mount Cinnamon's private Beach Cabana, an exclusive and contemporary beach-side club.

Renowned as a gourmand hotspot, Grenada stands out from the other Caribbean islands as a real foodie destination. One such example is Mount Cinnamon's 'Savvy's' Restaurant, where the star of the show is Chef Janice, one of the island's leading epicurean talents. Using many home-grown ingredients from Mount Cinnamon's sister property – the 17th century working plantation – Mount Edgcombe (www.mountedgcombegrenada.com), the dishes served are a delicious combination of authentic West Indian cooking with influences from the Mediterranean.

Grenada is a small island with a big heart. Boasting stunning mountainous topography, soaring waterfalls, verdant tropical rainforests and surrounded by spectacular coral reefs, it is an unspoilt haven for lovers of nature and exploration. A mecca for diving enthusiasts, the underwater treasures and marine life will fascinate any level of diver. At the southern tip of the Grenadines, Grenada is blessed with world class sailing; there is a full calendar of lively regattas. With a year round tropical climate, cooled by the trade winds Grenada is a year round destination rewarding you with an unforgettable holiday.
